Chairman Brunette noted that this item has been addressed by the Library Board several times. Supervisor VanVonderen pointed out that costs may be confusing as the $20M has been lumped together. Actually 1.9M is for a engineering schematic plan; $14M for maintenance costs, and $9 for renovation.

Library Board President, Terry Watermolen, informed the committee they are working on reducing the cost, noting that the $1.9M architectural design/ engineering schematic plan will help to better define necessary costs. He also pointed out that this plan is needed as it will allow for possible energy grants and to better understand bonding requirements.

Motion by Supervisor Clancy, seconded by Supervisor VanVonderen to refer back to the Library Board, per the request of Supervisor VanderLeest. MOTION UNANIMOUSLY APPROVED

4. Communication from Supervisor VanderLeest re: Request to include a commitment of future excess Room Tax Monies in Brown County toward the Resch Center, Shopko Hall, and Arena Complex Capital needs. Monster Mayhem at the Museum is created to provide the Neville Public Museum with a Halloween event. It is also intended to fit a variety of interests:

- Family-Friendly
- Humorous, not horrifying
- Contains historical information
- Short enough for children's attention spans and busy adult schedules

Monster Mayhem is feasible:

- Fairly simple and cost-effective to produce
- Makes use of resources the Neville Museum already has – theater, video production equipment
- Minimal staff required to produce and to perform
- All Packer games are on Sundays this October - kids are off of school on Thursday, Oct 27th and Friday, Oct 28th

(from the 2010 handout)

Monster Mayhem at the Museum: An Historic Tribute to the Midnight Movie Spook Show!

This year the Neville is producing its own October Halloween Event – Monster Mayhem at the Museum. Have you ever heard of a Midnight Movie Spook show? Join our "Security guard" as he recreates a theater experience that was popular in the 30s, 40s and 60s.

First, he'll Terrify you when he shows you a 50s Television episode of One Step Beyond, Tales of Tomorrow or some other Classic TV surprise. Then...accompany the Guard as he takes you on a 3-D Tour of the Neville's Private Haunted Collection.

As members of the audience, you will actually become a part of the movie – Horrifying! And while you're touring the Collection area, you may even run into some "old friends" – all without ever leaving your seat! It's Amazing! It's Fantastical! And it might even be Educational!

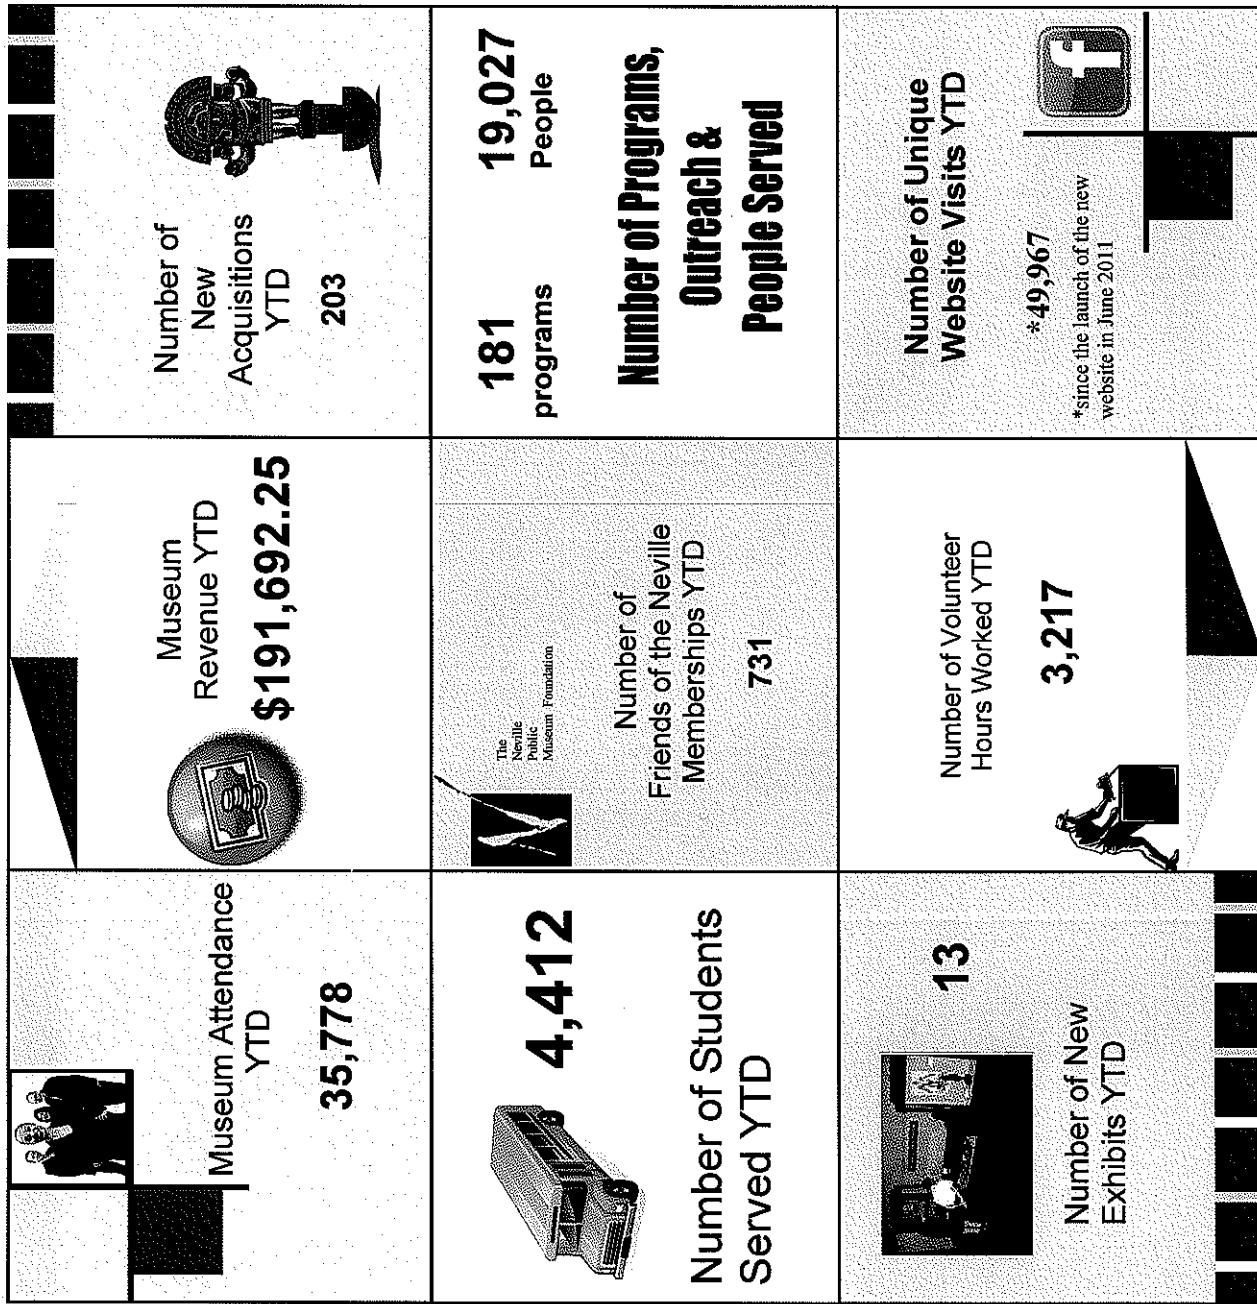

Tickets available on day of show with Museum Admission

A Free Show will be performed on Wednesday, October 27th! Tickets available while they last for this Family-Friendly Halloween movie event – 45 Minutes for each show time.

I hope this information gives a fuller impression of the format of Monster Mayhem. Other questions can probably be answered by watching the DVD. Let me know if you have any specific suggestions.

In these times of shrinking habitats, degraded environments and changing biological diversity, it is a rare and wonderful event when an endangered species is brought back from the brink of extinction. Peregrine Falcon: The Return of an Endangered Species tells such a story. Using specimens, objects, interactives, video and graphics, this 2,000-foot exhibit looks at the biology, behavior and near extinction of these remarkable birds.

Through illustrations and falconry equipment, visitors are introduced to the long history the Peregrine has shared with humans. A diorama introduces viewers to a mounted peregrine nesting area. Another mini-diorama, a model of crushed and cracked eggs resting on a rock ledge, helps visitors understand the terrible toll DDT and other pesticides had on peregrine populations. A large panorama photomural of big-city skylines gives visitors a peregrine's-eye view of its modern-day city habitat.

This exhibit was developed by the Bell Museum in collaboration with the Raptor Center at the University of Minnesota, and other raptor conservation groups throughout North America.

The Green Bay Connection

The Green Bay area has been connected to peregrine falcons for a long time. In fact, Green Bay is part of the recovery of this former endangered species in Wisconsin. Although there are no historic records of nesting peregrines before 1990, peregrines have migrated through this part of Wisconsin for thousands of years. Since 1995, peregrine falcons have been nesting right here in Green Bay at the J.P. Pulliam Power Plant and have produced more than 50 chicks.

Natural History Lecture Series: The Recovery, Management and Future of Wisconsin's Peregrine Falcon

Avian expert Greg Septon will discuss Wisconsin's peregrine falcon on Wednesday, November 9th from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m.; this is a free event.

This richly illustrated PowerPoint presentation will provide an overview of Peregrine Falcon recovery efforts in Wisconsin between 1987-2010. Septon will discuss recovery methods and approaches utilized in the creation of an urban nesting population along the Lake Michigan shoreline.

He will also talk about nest box designs, urban nest site management issues and resolutions, band returns, dispersal of hatched and wild-produced falcons, nesting chronology, prey species, overwintering, environmental contaminants and the role of electric power generating plants in the recovery of the population. The reoccupation of historical cliff eyries along the Mississippi River and recovery efforts on the Door Peninsula will also be discussed. Finally, he will look at what the future holds for the Peregrine Falcon in Wisconsin.

This program is co-sponsored by The Wild Ones, NEW Audubon Society & the Baird Creek Preservation Foundation.

The MUSEPAPER

From the Director: Rolf Johnson

The turning of the seasons means different things to different people. For some, it's the cause of wistful sadness, as the days gradually become cooler, the daylight shorter, and the outdoor activities of summer make way for extra blankets on the bed and the early-morning routine of school days. For others, the falling leaves are a harbinger of football season and those dazzling, brisk mornings where each visible breath makes one feel alive!

Here at the Neville, the turning of the seasons typically means the transition from one set of exhibitions and educational programs to another. Like the changing seasons, there's something to amaze and wonder at as summer's exhibits are de-installed and new exhibits are unveiled, like the landscape revealed anew as the falling leaves open vistas previously obscured by a canopy of leafy green.

In nature, living organisms adapt in different ways to the changing seasons; be they oak trees or black bears, they're constantly reacting to changes in their environment. When the change is rapid, whole populations can lose their adaptive edge and be wiped out. One need to look no further than the end of the last ice age and the extinction of the Pleistocene mega-fauna to reinforce this fact: adapt or die.

What can we learn comparing this organismal change, which we are so familiar with, to organizational change? Can organizations also be "living" in the sense that they respond organically to change? The answer is yes. The Neville Public Museum is going through such a period of profound change, both as an institution of Brown County and as a collection of dedicated individuals whose professional (and very often personal) lives are manifested in the fulfillment of its mission. To weather the changes now occurring, we need to be both resourceful and flexible; we will need to adapt to the new season unfolding.

Luckily, those who work and volunteer here are an adaptive lot, so even though this change may cause internal and external realignments to occur as we respond to shifting audience needs, economic realities and expanding partnerships, our focus on the Neville's core mission will remain true. This is something that hasn't changed in almost 100 years of our museum's history, and it must remain a constant as we prepare for the next 100 years, whatever change brings.

This, then, is a good time to take stock of the accomplishments we've made to-date and plan for what will soon be upon us: the opportunities of a bright new year. But lest I get ahead of myself, there's still a lot going on at your Neville Public Museum for the remainder of 2011, including the wonderful exhibits and public programs that are featured in this issue of the Musepaper. We hope that you'll make plans to join us at the Museum for the autumn and holiday seasons, as we all embrace the changes that are upon us!

Moneyville Exhibit Coming this January

Each of these artists follow his or her own direction in the creation of artworks unique to their particular visions. By visiting this exhibition, and by visiting Studio 210 itself, you are encouraging their talent and hard work—be sure to stop in.

Kid's Activity: Animals in the Museum

During the next three months, there will be many different animals on display at the Neville. Whether in On The Edge of the Inland Sea, Holiday Memories: Prange's Christmas Windows or Peregrine Falcon: Return of an Endangered Species, it's animals galore! Find some of the animals here, then look for them at the Museum. Search the Museum carefully, you may be surprised at how many more you can find!

The Museum's Own 67th Art Annual Juried Exhibition Opens November 5th

The highly anticipated Art Annual opens in the second-floor Byram-Manger Gallery on November 5th, where it continues through February 12, 2012.

A major, juried exhibition at the Neville since 1942, this display features some of the finest recent artwork by artists currently working in Northeastern Wisconsin or in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

This year, 91 different artists entered a total of 164 different artworks into the competition. This year's juror is Randall Berndt, who is Director and Curator at the James Watrous Gallery of the Wisconsin Academy of Sciences, Arts, and Letters in the Overture Center for the Arts, Madison, WI.

From those entered into the competition, Mr. Berndt will select the pieces to be included in the exhibition. Usually, only one in three or one in four pieces entered will be part of the display; it is quite competitive.

Watch the next issue of the Musepaper to find out who made it!

Holidays at the Neville!

Prange's Christmas Figures Return!

When August comes around, we know it's time to gear up for our annual Holiday celebrations- especially our Holiday Memories: Prange's Christmas Windows (November 25th – January 15th) exhibit. We picked out the featured dolls for our "Christmas windows" and decided on the new scenes. Until Thanksgiving arrives, we will be working on the details that bring the scenes to life- sewing curtains, painting toys, building grandfather clocks, knitting scarves- all at about 1/2 scale. This year we will feature a toy shop, holiday feast preparations in a kitchen and dining room and the arrival of a special visitor. The dolls will include some old favorites such as meat-grinder girl and boy with dishes, in addition to a few rarely seen characters.

Of course, adorable Snow Babies and animated Animal Musicians will return to the Enchanted Forest, and be sure to visit with Bruce the Spruce and Santa. Our charming gingerbread house will once again be home to our Children Only Shop where children ages 4-12 can do their own holiday shopping...in secret!

Relive the rich 30-year history of Green Bay's own outdoor arts festival, Artstreet, in this colorful exhibition filled with posters, paintings, pottery, photographs, and other memorabilia from the past three decades of its successful life.

Thirty posters circle the interior of the exhibition, which is filled with artwork that won the annual Artstreet purchase awards, selected annually to become part of the permanent collection of Arts Events, Inc. Arts Events, Inc. is a subsidiary of the Northeastern Wisconsin Arts Council; it now organizes and manages the Artstreet festival. The purchase award winners include paintings, wood works, decorative glass, photographs, and works in other media. Community Talkback Sessions

Proposed Template

PURPOSE: The purpose of these community talkback sessions is to 1) begin the process of “re-introducing” the museum, and the new museum director, to the community at-large; 2) continue the process of gathering information and data regarding public perceptions of the museum; 3) continue the process of conducting community needs assessment; and 4) begin building positive support for upcoming museum initiatives.

Once a date, time and venue have been chosen by individual County Board Supervisors, the following information will be used to structure the Community Talkback Sessions. TRT = 1 to 1.5 hours

- Welcoming remarks by County Supervisor to those in-attendance (@ 4-5 minutes)
- Introduction of Museum Director, Rolf Johnson (@ 1 minute)
- Short, up-beat presentation by museum director to set-the-stage for soliciting community comments (15 minutes):
 - A quick overview of the museum’s history, mission and the recent challenges the museum has faced as a department of Brown County;
 - A quick overview of opportunities and new initiatives already being explored by the museum and the community (e.g. the upcoming football exhibit, discussions of the USS Green Bay as a museum ship, our upcoming centennial celebration in 2015, etc.)
- Opening the floor to comments and questions: moderated by the museum director with County Supervisor involvement (30-45 minutes, depending on the number of participants)
- Closing comments (thanking participants for attending):
 - Museum Director
 - County Supervisor

OUTSTANDING QUESTIONS TO DISCUSS AT ED & REC COMMITTEE MEETING:

How do we market these events? How might we develop event themes vs. “generic comments?” What kind of PR can we expect?

Participants then switched tables and repeated the process. The evening was led by Maiko Katie Thao; traditional food was prepared by Natong Thao; music performed on a Hmong instrument called a qeej was provided by Lee Vang; art by Kou Vang was shown and a number of Hmong tapestries, purses, and other accessories were displayed. Proceeds from the event benefited the Friends of the Library who underwrote the food expenses.

From his book of the same title, L. Gordon McLester III gathered stories from members of the Oneida tribe who have contributed to their community. From the Dawes Act of 1887, to lacemaking as a labor of empowerment, and Oneida Nation's long history of military service, many stories of individuals will be reviewed.

Presenter: Mr. L. Gordon McLester III is an Oneida tribal historian. He is co-author of a number of books on the history of the Oneida Tribe. He continues to pursue the capturing of history of the Oneidas.

North Shore Bank "Zoo Boo"

Tickets now on sale for Halloween festivities to be held on Fridays and Saturdays throughout October

GREEN BAY, Wis. (September 15, 2011) – The NEW Zoo is pleased to announce North Shore Bank as the title sponsor, once again, for its annual Halloween event. Plans are well under way to ensure this year's North Shore Bank Zoo Boo is a spooktacular good time!

"All of us at North Shore Bank are big fans of the NEW Zoo, and we are thrilled to be sponsoring this year's Zoo Boo," said Tricia Cravillon, the bank's Northeast District Manager. "It's going to be a great time for the whole family, and we encourage everyone to come out and enjoy some Halloween fun."

Hundreds of lighted jack o' lanterns will line walkways and trails. Twelve Treat Stations will be scattered throughout the Zoo and candy will be handed out by costumed volunteers all 6 nights of the event. Children are encouraged to come in costume and trick or treat throughout the NEW Zoo—don't forget your treat bag.

Giant inflatable fun will be featured every night and we will have the "happy, haunted" Children's Zoo area for little monsters—featuring games and interactive fun. Plus, kids can "Scoop & Save" at the North Shore Bank station where they scoop up coins and put them in a coin counter. Whatever amount they scoop, the bank will add to their new Seymour Savings kids account when they visit their local branch and get started.

More adventurous visitors can enjoy a horse-drawn haunted hay wagon ride through the "Freaky Forest" the first four evenings of the event. Special Moments DJ will be on hand to rock the night away each evening – don't miss the chance to join dance with the NEW Zoo costumed mascots! Stop by North Shore Bank's free photo booth on October 21 and October 28 to take home a picture of your little ghouls and goblins.

Reforestation Camp Park

The Camp

- Has over 1500 acres of property.
- Average annual visitors are 95,000 people.
- We have miles of trails, fishing ponds, 2 rental units, a fire tower, educational areas, a playground and rifle range.

Aerial Photo

The Beginning

- Tax delinquent land stands idle and was declared useless because farmers could not grow crops in the sand.
- 1948 sparks from a train passing through started a fire which destroyed many of the trees. This was a wake up call!
- At that time Brown County decided they needed to do something with the land.
- May of 1950 the Reforestation Camp was dedicated as a prison inmate Camp.
- Many improvements have been made since the 1950s.

Buildings

Ski Lodge

- Constructed in 1998/ 99
- Used for rentals and open to the public for the ski season.
- It has a main hall as well as restrooms and changing rooms.
- Fully funded using grants, private donations and logging fees.
- We staff the Lodge during the ski season selling ski trail passes.

The Pines Shelter

- Constructed in 1970.
- Used for rentals.
- Includes a main hall and restrooms.
- Funded using Snowmobile registration fees.
- The siding was recently updated to a concrete fiber green product.
- We have also updated the floor, restroom dividers and tables.

Maintenance Cold Storage

- Constructed in 2005.
- Used for storage of equipment and maintenance operations.
